Literacies Modules

Literacies Modules

+ Engage
Engaging confidently and actively with information

+ Communicate
Expressing ideas and learning

+ Growth
Reflecting on and Refining Skills

WHAT

To support your first year of engagement with academic literacy, there is a course broken into three modules.

WHEN

These modules can be done across the year at a pace to suit you. Use the summer if you want to make semester one lighter.

HOW

These modules are designed to work hand-in-hand with your content courses.

WHY

This design puts you in the driving seat. Decide how busy a semester will be. Decide which module best suits the content courses you are doing.

HOW

What you learn in the module, gets applied and practised in your content course.

Javed Zaman

Bachelor of Science: Environmental Science
 Full time | Year 1

My university year needs to fit into 2 semesters as I will travel home during the summer break. The work I do in the literacies modules directly link to my main courses. It means semester 1 will be a lighter work load for me as I get used to studying in New Zealand.

Sonya Park

Bachelor of Health Science: Mental Health & Addictions
Full time | Year 1

I have found the step up from high school to university challenging. Especially the expectations around writing, critical thinking and engaging with information. The modules allowed me to take it slowly, apply my new learning to my health courses and gain confidence.

Ella Joyce-Tagaloa

Bachelor of Arts: College of Humanities & Social Science
 Full time | Year 1

I decided to use the whole year and have an easier first semester. When I looked at the literacies modules, I realised that the 'communication module' would support the writing intensive courses I'm doing in semester 2, and the 'growth module' would be a light way for me to prepare for the second year over the summer.
